Widow, Successor Tributes FDR

NORMAN, Okla. (UP) — His widow and his successor paid tribute Tuesday night to Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal on the silver anniversary of its first day.

Former President Harry S. Truman said Roosevelt had been one of "the greatest of the great presidents who came along and saved the republic."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said the New Deal showed the U.S. government had taken an interest in the problems of individuals.

"That period of our history was very important to enormous numbers of people over the world," she said.

Truman said Roosevelt's election was "the greatest thing that ever happened to this country."

Plumbing Firm Blamed for Pictures

WASHINGTON (UP) — Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy of the Senate Racket Committee said Tuesday the Kohler Co. "and no one else" bear responsibility for a picture-taking situation disclosed at committee hearing Monday.

In a letter to Henry L. Griffin, chairman of the Capitol Staffing Committee, Kennedy said "in no way did the committee hold the photographer 'accidental' or any individual photographer responsible."

The standing committee regulates operation of the congressional press photographers gallery and passes on applications for admission.

George C. Gallati, an official of the Kohler Co., acknowledged during a hearing that he had made arrangements with United Press Newspapers Commercial Photographic Division to take pictures of committee members coming with Joseph L. Rauh Jr., attorney for the AFL-CIO United Auto Workers Union.

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus announced today he would seek a third term as governor of Arkansas.

He filed his corrupt practices pledge and paid his ballot fee to Secretary of State C. G. Hall after handing newsmen a copy of a prepared statement.

He said he was convinced that the people of Arkansas will successfully support my candidacy for re-election as governor.

The governor said he decided to seek a third term only after analyzing the results of a public opinion poll, and correlating the results with "other information."

He would not discuss the poll other than to say "it was favorable," and that it was taken by Eugene Newman of Paragould.

Faubus' statement made only brief reference to the integration impasse at Little Rock Central High School. He criticized the Federal government for "unwarranted assumption of illegal powers."

"I shall continue without wavering to defend the right of a state to conduct its own affairs, and the right of communities with the assistance of the state to control their own schools," the statement said.

"It is my desire to continue to serve with charity to all and malice toward none so that all may have a better life in a progressive, growing state."

Faubus announced a month ago that he would tell the voters within 30 days if he would seek re-election. Today's news conference and announcement were not unexpected. There had been indications that he would go for a third term.

He said the favorable attitude on the part of the people is necessary for the election of a candidate, but added it is not "enough to assure the proper fulfillment of the duties of the office."

"Coupled with this attitude, which I believe I have correctly evaluated, it is my desire to serve."

If Faubus should be re-elected he will be the second man in the history of the state to be elected for three terms. Jeff Davis achieved the distinction in 1900, 1902 and 1904.

Faubus gave Hall a check for $1,500. Since Chris Finkbeiner already had announced, both he and Faubus will be eligible for re-election of $750 when the ballot closes June 23.

"We should continue the promotion of the industrial program to add factories and business firms employing thousands of people to hold the gains already made and continue the improvement of the public schools, the University, the state colleges, the Welfare Department, Parks and publicly, the State Hospital, and all other state programs and state agencies," Faubus' statement said.

He said two independent state agencies — the Highway Commission and the Game and Fish Commission — will have his full cooperation.

"Arkansas, known and respected among the other states, is in the march. It will be a great privilege and high honor if I am permitted to continue as your public servant," Faubus' statement said.

Newsmen asked Faubus if the integration impasse at Central High School influenced his decision to run again.

"I don't know that the crisis itself had any influence on my decision," he replied.

He said he would have taken

Boy Questioned in Slaver of Parents

HAMPDEN, Mass. (UP) — Robert C. Clifford Jr., a 17-year-old unemployed well-digger, was sought today for questioning in the rifle-slashing of his parents in younger brother.

Police along the entire Eastern Seaboard were alerted to watch for the sandy-haired youth, described as "quiet and moody but never in trouble."

The bullet-riddled bodies of his father, Robert C. Clifford, 47, an unemployed factory foreman, his mother, Marie, 44, and his brother, Ronald, 13, were found Tuesday by a milkman who entered the four-room cottage after spotting the victims through a window.

Investigators said all the dead were shot in the head several times, apparently with a 22 caliber rifle which was found in the kitchen. Police believed the slayings occurred Monday afternoon.

Jury System Discussed by Judge Brown

The American jury system — its selection, its work, its responsibilities, were discussed by Circuit Judge Lyle Brown in an address Tuesday noon before Hope Kiwanis club.

Selection of jurors, in both criminal and civil cases, is not done by the judge as some people think, but is done by three jury commissioners appointed by the judge of the court.

The commissioners, Judge Brown pointed out, select a panel of 48 persons who serve for a six-month term. In addition to the regular jury panel of 48, there are 25 additional jurors who are selected, their names placed in an envelope and sealed. They are not used — unless they are needed.

The best jury is one that is made up of a cross-section of persons with varied business and professional experience of life, and this type jury is the one that seems to render the wisest and safest conclusions, the judge pointed out.

Judge Brown ended his talk with humorous incidents on why some people did not like to serve on the jury. He drew a very fine line distinction between the words "hardship" and "inconvenience," which some people offered as excuses for not wanting to serve their government on jury cases.

About the only categories not eligible to call for jury service or compelled to serve, are doctors, lawyers, firemen, women and persons over the age of 65.

Chancery Judge James H. Pilkinton was a guest of the club.

Russia Proposes Summit Parley in United States

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower disclosed today that Russia has suggested holding an East-West summit conference in the United States.

The President said it would be a good idea, should such a meeting be called, to hold it in the United States, if it were a long one. But he said the place wouldn't make a great deal of difference in the case of a short meeting.

At the same time, the President repeated at his news conference U.S. insistence that a summit meeting be so well prepared in advance that there would be a reason to believe it would produce real progress toward ending of world tensions.

Anything less, he said, would be absolutely futile and damaging.

Door Still Open

The President endorsed Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' remarks of Tuesday rejecting latest Soviet terms for a foreign ministers' conference to prepare for a possible summit meeting. He said he had a long conversation with Dulles before the secretary of state spoke and that Dulles reflected his views.

Eisenhower went on to say he was sure Dulles did not mean to close the door on the possibility of a summit meeting.

The United States will never close the door, the President said, if any possible avenue — matter how narrow — develops which will appear to ease world tension. In that event, he said, he is ready to start no matter what the difficulties are.

Middlebrooks In Race for County Sheriff

Arnold J. Middlebrooks of Hope, Hempsstead County, has authorized the Star to announce his candidacy for the Office of Sheriff and Collector of Hempsstead County, subject to the Democratic primaries July 29 and August 12.

In announcing his candidacy for sheriff and collector, he issued the following statement:

"I have enjoyed serving the people of Hempsstead County as your County & Probate Clerk. I thank you very much for this privilege to serve you as a public servant. Today I am asking for a promotion to the office of Sheriff and Collector of Hempsstead County."

In performing some of the duties of the office of County Clerk such as making applications for birth certificates, issuing marriage licenses and preparing books for the Collector's Office, I feel that I am better qualified to serve you as your sheriff and collector.

Also in serving as your clerk in the Juvenile and Probate Courts, I am fully aware of the duties of the sheriff in dealing with young people as well as adults.

If I am elected your sheriff and collector, I will be at your service at all times. I am interested in the welfare of our people in all the communities of our County. I am also interested in progress in our farming and the promotion of more industry for our County.

Most of you people know that I was born and raised on a farm in the Palmos Community and that I taught school after attending Magnolia A. & M. College.

If I do not meet you personally, I take this means of soliciting your vote and support. I will appreciate your consideration of my qualifications, my experience, and my devotion to your service, when you vote for your next sheriff and collector of Hempsstead County. I humbly solicit your vote and support in the coming democratic primaries; and I will be glad to help you as I have in the past with any of the services I can render you.

Ike Declares Nixon Never Acting President

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower said today that Vice President Richard M. Nixon never was acting president during the chief executive's three major illnesses.

The President told a news conference that an occasion never arose where a purely presidential decision had to be made during his heart attack in 1955, his left stroke last November.

But he said that if such a crisis had arisen, Nixon would have acted as president to make the decision.

The President made the statement in answer to a question about his "clear understanding" with Nixon on what should be done in case of presidential disability.

Not a Pact

He described his written understanding with Nixon as an agreement between men of good will who have faith and confidence in each other.

He sharply corrected a reporter who referred to the understanding as a pact.

The President also abruptly rejected a suggestion from a reporter that the agreement might set a bad precedent "that could be taken advantage of in case the president and vice president were not men of good will."

Former President Truman and Speaker Sam Rayburn have questioned the legality of the agreement. They contend that a congressional act or a constitutional amendment is necessary.

But the President said that he believes the agreement is legal and constitutional. However, he supported a constitutional amendment introduced in the Senate Tuesday as a long-range solution for the problem.

Money Bill for Postoffice Is Approved

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House Tuesday approved a $4,104,000 money bill today to run the Treasury and Post Office departments in the fiscal year starting next July 1. The total was $13,861,000 less than President Eisenhower's request.

The measure was passed by voice vote and sent to the Senate. The House added $7,500,000, including four million dollars for the Coast Guard to the amount recommended by its Appropriations Committee.

The Coast Guard funds included two million dollars to build a new dormitory at the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., and an extra two million dollars for the Coast Guard reserves.

As approved the bill contains $704,627,000 for the Treasury, $5,200,000 more than President Eisenhower's request.

The Army launched a Jupiter-C rocket today and it climbed toward space on legs of fire, carrying a second bullet-nosed Explorer satellite expected to go into orbit not far behind the first.

It would be about two hours after the 12:28 p.m. e.s.t. firing before it would be announced from Washington whether an orbit had been achieved.

The first Explorer was fired Dec. 31 and had made 415 trips around the earth by today.

After only 27 seconds of flight the 70-foot missile carnyed the 70 foot Explorer into a bank of clouds that hung some what over the cape and was lost to view.

But its rumble jarred beaches for one minute after that. Then the rocket's noise faded as it soared on toward space.

Claims Girl Attacked an Official

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP) — A white girl expelled from Central High School and her mother "physically attacked" a school official, the Little Rock School Board said Tuesday night.

The board's statement came shortly after the ousted pupil, Sammie Dean Parker, 16, said on a television program sponsored by the anti-integrationist Capitol Citizens Council that the school never had given her "any good reason" for expelling her last Friday.

The girl also complained that a National Guardsman patrolling the school to keep order since it was integrated followed her "to the restroom door" and also asked for dates.

The board replied that Sammie Dean "was suspended for the remainder of the current school year following a series of events culminating in a physical attack by her and her mother on a lady staff member. The board feels this suspension was fully justified."

A spokesman for the Arkansas Military District had no comment on the girl's charges about the conduct of National Guardsmen.

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The Little Rock school board charged Tuesday night that a 16-year-old expelled Central High School girl and her mother last week "physically attacked" a lady staff member at Central.

GOP Members Would Hear Demo Lawmen

By NEIL MacNEIL
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — Republicans on a house investigating subcommittee moved today to "involve" four Democratic senators to tell what they know about any "improper pressures" on the Federal Communications Commission.

But Subcommittee Chairman Owen Harris (D-Ark.) blocked the attempt at least momentarily, by ruling that House rules do not allow such procedure.

Rep. Charles A. Wolverton (R-N.J.) asked permission to make a motion formally availing Sen. Warren Magnuson (D-Wash.), Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), George Smathers (D-Fla.), and Spessard Holland (D-Fla.) to appear before the subcommittee.

Names of all four senators have turned up frequently in the subcommittee's investigation of a hotly disputed FCC decision that awarded a Miami, Fla., television channel to a National Airlines subsidiary.

Call Charge "Ridiculous"

FCC Commissioner Richard A. Mack, who voted for the franchise, resigned in the face of charges — which he flatly denied — that he had let money and friends influence his decision.

G.T. Baker, president of the airline, said the "pressure" was all on the other side, exerted by the senators, and they ought to resign, too.

Some of the senators described his charge as "ridiculous," and branded his statement as that of a "desperate, reckless, irresponsible man."

When Wolverton asked permission to make his "invitational" motion, Harris said he would have to rule out of order such a motion at the public session. But Harris said Wolverton could offer the motion at a closed session later.

Harris told the subcommittee that he has received no word from any senator requesting permission to testify before the subcommittee. He said there was an "open invitation" for any member of Congress to testify at any time.

Orie Byers Is Candidate for County Judge

The Star was authorized today to announce the candidacy of Orie Byers for the office of County Judge. Mr. Byers issued the following statement.

"Taking into consideration the many promises of support that I have had from many people in various parts of the county, I have decided after careful consideration to enter the race for County Judge of Hempsstead County."

"The office of County Judge is an important one and carries many responsibilities. There are many and varied duties, Chief of which is keeping the County in good financial condition. The County roads in good shape, and speaking of roads, I will do this without favoring a few, and see to all the road system."

"If elected your County Judge, I will always realize that the office belongs to the people, and it will be my policy to seek your advice on many matters. Between now and the last of July I am going to see as many of you as possible. I know many of you personally, and think that you know me, and the things for which I stand. I will greatly appreciate your vote and support."

3 Arrested in Poison Alcohol Deal

NEW YORK (UP)—Three men were arrested on murder charges today in the deaths of 25 persons from poison bootleg alcohol.

The last two victims died in New York hospitals this morning after the arrests were made, police reported.

Police said one of them, Francisco Padin, 32, Hoboken, N.J., had admitted stealing 60 gallons of wood alcohol from the chemical plant where he works and selling it for $35 a five gallon can to small-time bootleggers in the Bronx and Manhattan.

Several Still Ill

Most of the 25 persons who have died of the lethal alcohol in the last week were Puerto Rican residents of Manhattan's Spanish Harlem slums who purchased the cheap "King Kong" liquor from neighborhood peddlers. Two deaths were Bronx residents, and it was Bronx detectives who found and followed up the leads which led to today's arrests.

Several persons are still in hospitals, some in critical condition and one nearly blind from effects of the cut-rate poison.

Padin and Pedro Rodriguez, 26, a tannery worker charged with helping him distribute the alcohol, were arrested in Hoboken and booked as fugitives from murder charges in New York.

The third man, Ernesto Vega, 39, was arrested in the Bronx and booked on a homicide charge.

Detective Lt. Frank Weldon said two other men, arrested in the Bronx last week on liquor law violation charges, were also distributors of the murderous alcohol. They were Alberto Diaz and Jose Belito.

Weldon said Padin, a machine operator for the Metal Chemical Corp. at Carlstadt, N.J., insisted he did not know when he stole it that the alcohol was poisonous. But he admitted, Weldon said, that the first bootlegger to whom

The American Legion Hut was made festive with the blue and he offered it returned it to him and told him it was "no good."

He said Padin stole the first 30 gallons of alcohol about a month ago and the second 30 gallons about two weeks later. Weldon said he believes Padin destroyed the second batch after learning of the deaths. He said he believed all the alcohol is now out of distribution.

The first of the alcohol deaths were reported a week ago, five persons who had been drinking together at a weekend party. New victims continued to enter hospitals through Tuesday. Police were hampered in their early search for the supply of the liquor because most victims reached hospitals unconscious and died without being able to tell where they got their death potions.

for expelling her.

The girl was expelled Friday. Earlier, she had been given a two-week suspension after school officials said she distributed cards which read "one down—eight to go." The cards referred to the expulsion of Minnie Jean Brown, one of the nine Negroes who integrated Central under paratrooper protection Sept. 25.

The girl also charged a federal National Guardsman had followed her "all over the building and up to the restroom door." She said Central High Principal Jess W. Matthews told her to "take your books, clean out your locker and never come back."

Summie Dean said three of the cards she had were given her "by a boy I know." She said she gave the cards to "three of my best girl friends" who asked for them. The girl said when she told school officials "three-fourths" of the school enrollment was either wearing or carrying the cards, they assured her others would be disciplined, too. But only one other student, Howard Cooper, was suspended. He returned to classes Monday.

The school board issued a statement immediately following the telecast saying it felt the "suspension was fully justified."

Status of Stringers Discussed

By WILLIAM H. EATON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Labor Department is considering whether part-time news correspondents called "stringers" should be covered under the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Such coverage would mean "stringers" would have to be paid at least $1 an hour and time-and-a-half for work over 40 hours a week.

Leading newspaper publishers associations and the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters have gone on record against placing stringers under provisions of the act.

They contend stringers are not employed on an hourly basis but are paid only for what news they submit and are actually independent contractors.

Acting wage-hour administrator Clarence T. Lundquist has been studying the matter for nearly six months. A spokesman for the wage-hour division said no decision is in sight.

The spokesman said several cases have been brought to Lundquist's attention after investigators for the Labor Department sought advice on stringers' status under the law. The department has exempted stringers from coverage so far.

The American Newspaper Publishers Assn. led a delegation of employer groups to urge the department not to change stringer status at a meeting last fall.

Other groups represented at that time were the Pennsylvania Publishers Assn., National Editorial Assn., Inland Daily Press Assn., and the New England Weekly Press Assn.

The spokesman for the wage-hour division said statements from other groups are still being submitted. Lundquist wants to review all comments before making a policy decision, he said.

The broadcasters group said radio and TV stations would forego coverage of news events in small towns if stringers are ruled to be employees.

It added federal decisions have almost invariably held stringers are independent contractors rather than the provision to the administration's request to take care of a flood of applications by farmers.

The Senate committee restored a House cut of $1,930,000 for construction, equipment and salary increases for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, the government's top aviation research agency. Money added by the committee also included $795,000 for Senate investigations.

N. Y. Garment Workers Out on Strike

NEW YORK (UP)—The bustling garment industry ended a quarter century of labor peace today when 60,000 workers left their jobs in New York's garment district and marched to a Madison Square Garden rally.

The mass of workers, members of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, poured out of the lofts along Seventh Avenue in what approached a carnival atmosphere. Twelve sound trucks whipped up their enthusiasm as they marched.

ILGWU President David Dubinsky and AFL-CIO President George Meany were to speak at the rally.

The strike is the first general strike in the vast garment industry since 1933. It was expected to affect a total of 105,000 workers in New York City and New York State, New Jersey, Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island.

A union spokesman said the strike would affect 60,000 union members and members of affiliated unions in New York, plus 30,000 union members and members of affiliated unions outside the city, and 15,000 members of independent unions both in and out of New York.

The union said an additional

BROTHELS ORDERED CLOSED

ROME (UP)—Italy's 580 brothels have been ordered to close their doors by Sept. 4. An anti-prostitution law passed by Parliament Jan. 29 was published in the Official Gazette Tuesday. The law gives the brothels six months from the date of publication to close down.

25,000 workers who make belts, buttons and embroidery would be idled by the strike.

Federal and city mediators joined forces Tuesday in efforts to avert the strike but their efforts were futile. Workers were instructed in special delivery letters to take their usual places at 9 a.m. today and walk out on hour later.

Madison Square Garden is about a half mile from the center of the "garment" district. The march lines included cutters, sample makers, examiners, drapers, pressers, finishers, cleaners and operators.

Shipping clerks and sorters, who have a separate contract with the five employer groups which the strike was called, joined the mass walkout.

TWO DEAD IN CRASH

CAMERA EXPORTS INCREASE

WASHINGTON (UP)—U.S. exports of still photographic equipment rose to a record high last year of $54,822,104, about eight per cent above the previous record in 1935, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday. It said there were increases in the number of fixed-focus box cameras and in still picture projectors exported.

OAKCREST FUNERAL HOME

Second and Hazel
Hope, Arkansas

To Our Friends in Southwest Arkansas:

On this fourth anniversary of the OAKCREST FUNERAL HOME IDEA we want to re-state the basic principles upon which this service institution was founded and to which our efforts are dedicated...

Fundamentally, we believe that the qualities of Beauty, Dignity and Character are inherent to the service we render you and your community. These are inseparable and enduring. Whenever any one of these is lacking, the result is the same — inadequacy.

Many of you, directly or indirectly, inspired us to make your most intimate requirements of a funeral home come true. We gratefully acknowledge your constructive suggestions and take justifiable pride, we think, in listing some of the more important features that have endeared OAKCREST FUNERAL HOME to those who saw the need for an opportunity of choosing their service institution:

1. Locally owned.
2. Personnel of highest quality and experience, devoted exclusively to funeral business.
3. Newest and finest equipment.
4. Instant ambulance service — Day and Night.
5. Strictly private preparation room.
6. Extensive selections visibly priced, complete with services (no extras).
7. Spacious chapel with reverent, church atmosphere.
8. Strong — growing Burial Association.

Today — after more than half a century — you have the benefit of choice. We appreciate the support and inspiration you have given us. You are invited to visit us and inspect our facilities at any time. We believe sincerely that you will approve of what you see and appreciate our philosophies.

Yours very truly,

OAKCREST FUNERAL HOME

News Briefs

CAMDEN (UP)—Arkansas' biggest mystery story was a year old as of 11 p.m. Sunday night. That's when Mrs. Maude Crawford, 64, a woman lawyer, disappeared.

There's still not a single trace of her whereabouts. Mrs. Crawford's husband Clyde Crawford, 63, returned home from a movie about 11 p.m. to find his wife missing. Her law briefs and books were on the dining room table. In succeeding months and weeks, streams, lakes and bayous were dragged and many search parties organized.

Photographs of Mrs. Crawford have been run in most major newspapers in the nation and reward posters with her picture have been circulated to police departments in every major city and many smaller towns.

FORT SMITH (UP)—A 24-year-old man died in a hospital here Sunday several hours after he was shot in the head while playing Russian roulette with a .38 caliber pistol.

Police identified the victim as Kenneth Sewell Webb, who died of a bullet wound slightly above the left temple. Hospital attendants said the bullet lodged in his brain.

An airman stationed at Larson Air Force Base, Washington, Sherman Hicks, told police he and the victim had been drinking. He told police Webb "kept spinning the chamber of the gun, pointing the barrel at his head and squeezing the trigger."

"I kept warning him to be careful," said Hicks, "but he had been drinking."

No charges were filed and officers termed the death "accidental." Officers quoted Hicks as saying he had been visiting Webb and his wife and child.

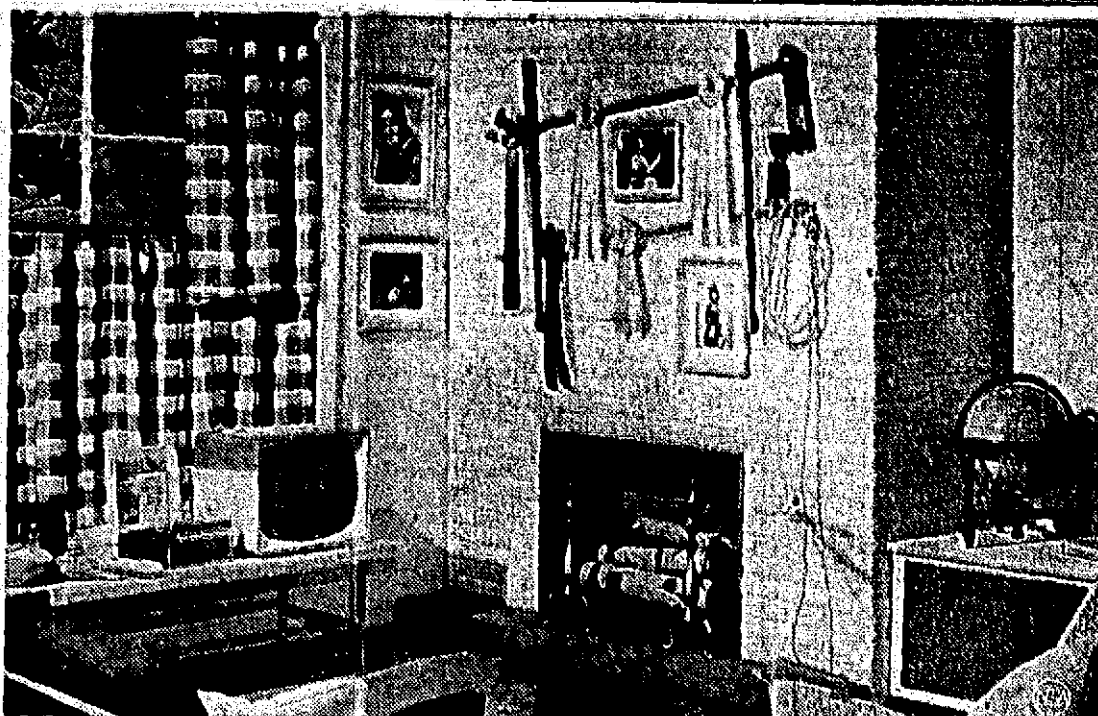

NEWPORT (UP)—The price of milk is back up to normal today, after a price war between two grocery stores which sent housewives rushing for free milk.

The war started when a new store kept on an opening day special on milk, and a competitor cut his price to meet it. The war finally resulted in one store charging 45 cents for a half-gallon, which normally sells for 47 cents, and the other store in giving away the milk with $3 purchases.

EL DORADO (UP)—A 57-year-old Negro died at the wheel of his car today, but apparently realized he was suffering a heart attack as he stopped the vehicle before causing any damage.

The man, James E. King, was pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital. He had been employed by a local automobile company for 30 years.

The car stopped on a sidewalk near a cemetery.

Trophies, ribbons and photos that reflect outdoor enthusiasms keynote the decoration of this room. Rough wood frame ties what could be a clutter into a portrait of family activity.

DOROTHY DIX

Children Come First In Loveless Marriage

Dear Dorothy Dix: Recently you advised the mother of three children, even though she no longer loved her husband, and was in love with another man, to stay with her husband for the sake of her children and her religion. What kind of a life can this woman lead? How can she and her husband be happy — physically and mentally — if there is no love? Living with a man you don't love is not as easy as you imply it might be. I am now over 30 married have one child and think I know a little about life and love at this point, so I disagree with you wholeheartedly.

Dear Betty: I'm sorry if I incurred your disapproval, but perhaps I can straighten you (and many others who disagree with this point of view) out on a few things. I never claimed that a woman could be truly happy living with a man she has ceased to love, but what guarantee has she that the new love will be a steadfast one? As a matter of fact, it will probably be very weak, since it would rest on very uneasy foundations. She had her chance at romance years ago, before she bore three children. Her responsibility and obligation is now to them, not to some fly-by-night lover and certainly not to her own casual emotions. You, as a mother, know perfectly well that once a woman has children she cannot (unless she has colonies of money and servants) do as she wishes. Her children come first. If a woman has been brought up conscientiously in a religion, she cannot cast it off as she would last year's dress. The question involved, then, becomes one of expediency, obligations to children and conscience. If a woman can reconcile all these with the demands of a heart that has already proved unstable, she might be able to leave her husband. I've known, and known of dozens of women who, under these circumstances, gave up all for love, but I have yet to know one who found happiness. Sticking it out ultimately brings contentment, and very frequently makes one realize that the true love was right at home all the time.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I think my girl friend has had manners. For instance, when I call on her I'm met at the door by another member of the family. I think she should do this. I like her family but prefer to be welcomed by the girl.

O. O. Some girls like to make the "Grand Entrance" and it isn't necessarily a breach of manners to have someone else open the door for you. Since it bothers you, tell the young lady you'd like to see her first — at least once in a while.

Dear Dorothy Dix: What are the names of some of your leaflets, and how would I go about obtaining one? — Steady Reader

Dear Steady Reader: A few of my most popular leaflets are "The Petting Problem," "Turn Your

Darkhorse Springs Up in Union Vote

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UP)—A dark horse from Buffalo, N.Y., sprung up today to oppose incumbent James Cross as president of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union at the group's annual election of officers.

Alex White, president of Buffalo Local 429 with 1,100 members, claimed the support of more than half the locals at the convention. The election was scheduled for today.

The union was expelled from the AFL-CIO in December, cause Cross refused to step down after he and other top officers were charged with corruption.

White said most members of the Spare Time Into Cash," "The Way To A Boy's Heart," and "Baby Sitting." You may obtain one by indicating your choice and sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have given my girl friend an engagement ring now I find that I do not wish to enter the bonds of matrimony. The girl appears to be antisocial and neurotic, and I don't think we'd be compatible. How do I go about getting the ring back? I've been stung once and don't want it to happen again. — MILTON

Dear Milton: All you can do is break the engagement and ask for the ring. If she's a lady of honor, she'll return it without question. If she keeps it, that's her privilege as the jilted party. In the future, don't be so casual about distributing diamonds.

Snow Sweeps Across the Kansas Area

By UNITED PRESS

Up to five inches of snow swept across southern Colorado into north central Kansas Tuesday night and early today, and weathermen said the showstorm was expected to spread today into Nebraska, Iowa and northwest Missouri.

The snowfall emerged from a storm center that dumped rain from Texas into the central Plains.

The rain turned to snow as it hit colder air from a frigid air mass centered in northeast Montana and northwest North Dakota. Overnight readings plunged to 5 above zero near the Canadian border.

Snow flurries also continued during the night in the Great Lakes area and eastward through New England.

The deepest snow accumulation Tuesday night was five inches at Lamar, Colo., while Hill City, Kan., reported four inches and Russell, Kan., two. Lighter amounts hit portions of eastern Nebraska and southeast South Dakota.

Temperatures climbed an average of about 15 degrees into the 30s and 40s in the central Plains as southerly winds pushed the storm northward. There was little change in temperature elsewhere, with readings ranging from the 30s in the Northeast to the 40s and 50s in the Southeast, the Pacific Coast and the Southwest.

Weathermen predicted the rain in Texas and southeast Kansas would spread eastward today into the Mississippi Valley with snow elsewhere in the central Plains.

Rain was sent for the Northwest and south to central California, along with scattered snows over the Rockies. Snow flurries were predicted today over New England and partly cloudy skies were expected in the Southeast.

Clear Skies May Bring Launchings

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—Clearing skies early today boded prospects for the coming round of U.S. satellite launchings from Cape Canaveral.

A two-day siege of wind and rain ended suddenly late Tuesday night. Forecasters had indicated the bad weather might plague the Cape a few more days.

Barring technical difficulties and a return of the unfavorable weather, both the Army and Navy are expected to launch satellite rockets by the end of the month.

The Army gave the best chance of putting a second Explorer into orbit around the earth. The Army will use its four-phase Jupiter-C rocket, which blasted Explorer I into the heavens Jan. 31, and the Navy will use its Vanguard, which has been blown up both times previously when fired with a satellite.

The Navy, however, will not make its main satellite effort until later this month when it is due to put a 21-inch satellite in the Vanguard. The first two tests were aimed primarily at testing the three-stage Vanguard rocket itself, the next launching also has that purpose.

The 72-foot Vanguard has not had a successful flight as a three-stage vehicle. The Jupiter-C has been flown successfully a number of times it being used as a satellite carrier.

Prof. Samuel P. Baynard of Pennsylvania State University, has more than 275 unusual snuff boxes in his collection, including one with an attached grinder which permitted its thrifty user to grind his own snuff from tobacco.

England and partly cloudy skies were expected in the Southeast.

Yerger Senior Class Attends Career Conference
The Senior Class of Yerger High School, and the Guidance Counselor, Mrs. M. Z. Gillen traveled by Trailway Bus to Bossier City, La. to attend a Career Conference held at Charlotte Mitchell High School.

The purpose of the conference was to widen the occupational horizon of high school students. The objectives were: 1. To give students a chance to learn about the requirements for careers and occupational opportunities in the world of work; and 2. To bring successful career men and women in different occupations, and sources of potential workers, discuss the work that must be done.

Fifty consultants were present from colleges, universities, and high schools in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma to give students information on specific jobs, and a knowledge of the present occupational outlook.

The group had an opportunity to become acquainted personally with representatives of American Business, Labor and the Professions.

Approximately 900 seniors from the 4 states attended the conference.

Cosmetics Lady Ardent Horse Racer

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE
(Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.)
By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Arden Graham, the cosmetics lady, is all booked up in another beauty today.

This one involves her Kentucky Derby colt, Jewel's Reward, and the rival Calumet Farm's Tim Tam. The mud pack pony finished first in Saturday's Flamingo but the head victory over Tim Tam was taken away because Jewel's Reward gave the Calumet colt the shoulder in the stretch.

It has set up a feud which gives added interest to the glamorous three-year-old races ahead.

Promises Of Fireworks
Manuel Ycaza, the Jewel's jockey, and Willie Hartack, Tim Tam's boy, banded words back and forth before the Flamingo which indicated that they weren't bosom buddies and would insist on elbow room. Then they made like the Hatfields and the Coys on their way to the wire to set up a script which promises more future fireworks than "The Prigs of Paulina."

This, naturally, provides an added flip to the horse's set future clock. Gulfstream Park, which opens today, is hoping to present the next episode when it runs the fabulous Florida Derby on March 29. Tim Tam is a sure starter and the disappointed Mrs. Graham can make Jewel's Reward, not a nominee, eligible by payment of a supplementary fee.

But whether they book up in the Florida classic, or in such later events as the Triple Crown—Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont—or the Arlington Classic or American Derby, the feud shapes up as one for the horseback ages.

Recalls Other Duels
There have been, actually, very few such head bangings. Which is why, when one does come along, it gets the racing world in a tizzy. Since av and Papyrus went at it in the earliest of the modern head and head battles, only a few have had all the qualities to attract national attention. These include such as Noor against Clifton, Swaps vs. Nashua, Dark Star's vendetta with Native Dancer, Middleground battling Hill Prince, Alsab against Whirlaway, Capot cutting it up with Countown, and Seabiscuit against War Admiral.

Not considering the great number of races, are there many such highlighted bumping, scrape a that in which Jewel's Reward and Tim Tam were involved Saturday.

Veteran horsemen will talk about the St. Louis Derby "way back in 1896" when the two 16p colts of that era, Ben Brush and Price Lief, hooked up. Price Lief was known to bear out under pressure and Ben Brush's owner wanted the stewards before the race.

Price Lief did bear out despite the interference, the great Ben Brush was to make the claiming of a foul unnecessary. Calumet's Tim Tam needed the disqualification, however, in the Flamingo.

But it did start what could emerge as a grudge match which will provide added spice for the always interesting three-year-old classics just ahead.

What Happened to Arturo Godoy?

By UNITED PRESS

Arturo Godoy of Chile created a sensation in 1940 when he went 15 rounds with Joe Louis at time Louis was bawling over all comers in short order. Arturo bobbed, weaved, jabbed, and occasionally thoroughly befuddled the champ but lost the decision.

In a return bout, Louis belted out Arturo in eight rounds. Godoy had been a pro for nine years before meeting Louis, eating such as over-the-hill Tommy Loughran and Luis Firpo in South American boxing.

Godoy toured American boxing briefly in a long dance act with his wife between Louis bouts and there, too, showed fancy footwork.

Whatever happened to Arturo Godoy? After a brief comeback in 1945, he returned to Santiago, Chile, where he operates a restaurant and his wife owns a dress shop.

TOURNEY SOLD OUT

RALEIGH, N.C. (UP)—Friday night's semifinals of the annual Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament have been sold out. However, officials of the tournament said about 400 tickets still are available for the finals Saturday night and about 1,200 for Thursday's afternoon and evening opening rounds.

Lumley Big Asset To Boston Bruins

By UNITED PRESS

Some folks laughed when Harry Lumley returned to the National Hockey League several weeks ago, but he's the guy who is helping the Boston Bruins nail down a playoff spot.

The 31-year-old defenseman, who was only a second-stringer in the American League when the Bruins purchased him from Buffalo, totaled 37 saves Tuesday night as the Bruins edged the Detroit Red Wings, 2-1, on a goal by Don McKeney with less than two minutes remaining.

The Maple Leafs entertain the Chicago Black Hawks in tonight's only game.

Porkers Swamp Texas to Tie For SWC Title

FAYETTEVILLE (UP)—Officials of Arkansas and Southern Methodist were to confer by telephone today to choose a neutral court for a playoff game to decide the Southwest Conference title following Tuesday night's victory by both schools which caused the deadlock.

Both teams now have identical 9-5 records following SMU's 77-32 win over Baylor at Waco, Tex., and Arkansas' 74-60 defeat of Texas here.

The winner of the one-game playoff will determine the Southwest Conference's representative in the NCAA regional tourney at Lawrence, Kan., next week.

Arkansas broke open and led 39-29 at the intermission.

But Texas players connected on six of their first seven field goal attempts and the longhorn led 20-19 when the first period had elapsed.

A crowd of more than 5,000 watched, reliable Freddy Ginn broke the scoring record by George Kok for the Razorback in 1958. Kok had a record of 233 points.

It was the 14th Southwest Conference title which the Porks have either won out right or hared since 1924. But the Razorback haven't rung up a crown since the 1950 quad tied he Baylor Bear for the honor.

University of Arkansas officials indicated they would ask the playoff game be held at Shreveport, La., Tuesday night.

Old Heroes May Thin Out This Year

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—This could be the last trip down the big league pike for some of the old heroes.

Time's a'wastin' for many of those who have written years of baseball headlines. Not all of them will bow out on this spin of the wheel but some of them are bound to fall by the wayside this season.

They are the ones who are in the forty-ish brigade, those who are either bridging past an age which is the other side of the baseball hill.

The senior member is Country Slaughter of the Yankees, who, 42 next month, still shows no sign of packing it in. And right on his heels in the 41 bracket are Murry Dickson of the A's and Sal Maglie of the Yankees.

Reese in Comeback
Nobody's calling it the end for Ted Williams, who will be 40 in August, but it's a brittle age where anything that goes wrong could spell the finish. And Hank Sauer, at 39, doesn't have 100 much longer at the top.

There are a host of them in the 38 bracket. These include Earl Wynn, Dixie Howell and Gerry Suley of the White Sox. Bob Lemon and Jim Vernon of the Indians, and Jim Hegan of Detroit. They're at an age when any day could be the last.

Yet, a young fellow who will be 39 in August, looks like he's heading for a "comeback" this season which could keep him on the scene for another couple of years at a youngster's position.

That's PeeWee Reese of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Listed At Third
The little captain seemed, before spring training started, to be in more difficulty than a trumpet player with loose dentures. He hurt his back last season, was shut out over to third base and batted a lowly .229. When the squad reported, he was listed as just one of five third base candidates, and not the top one at that.

With rookie Dick Gray, a power-hitter from St. Paul, ready for duty, third, this Fred Reese and the little man with the lifetime .270 batting mark is making a determined drive to recapture his long-time post.

"I'm working harder than ever before," says the Little Colonel. "This could be my last time around if I'm not ready, and, well, I'm going to be ready."

Barring injury, he'll be back at the same old stand. But how long he and the others at the danger zone ago can go on only time will tell.

Favorites Win In Arkansas Cage Tourney

By UNITED PRESS

Jonesboro and Texarkana advanced into the quarterfinals of the state AAA-AA tournament at Little Rock Tuesday night with easy victories over Arkadelphia and Leachville. But Little Rock Central and Van Buren had to fight all the way to slip past Rogers and Benton.

Jonesboro downed Arkadelphia 87-45 by hitting 32 of 71 shots from the field. They were led by Freddy Pickets, who hit 24 points. Dickie Pickets with 18, and Don Vowell with 13.

The Hurricanes took over control of the backboards a few minutes after the start of the game and were never in trouble. Pickets and Fall raced through the Arkadelphia zone to account for many of their points. The halftime score was 35-20.

Hansford Holt took game scoring honors for Arkadelphia with 29 points.

Texarkana won its game with Leachville 69-43 by controlling the boards and hitting 29 of 39 shots. Leachville hit long shots in the opening stanza but had trouble finding the basket after that. The Razorbacks were on top 33-23 at halftime.

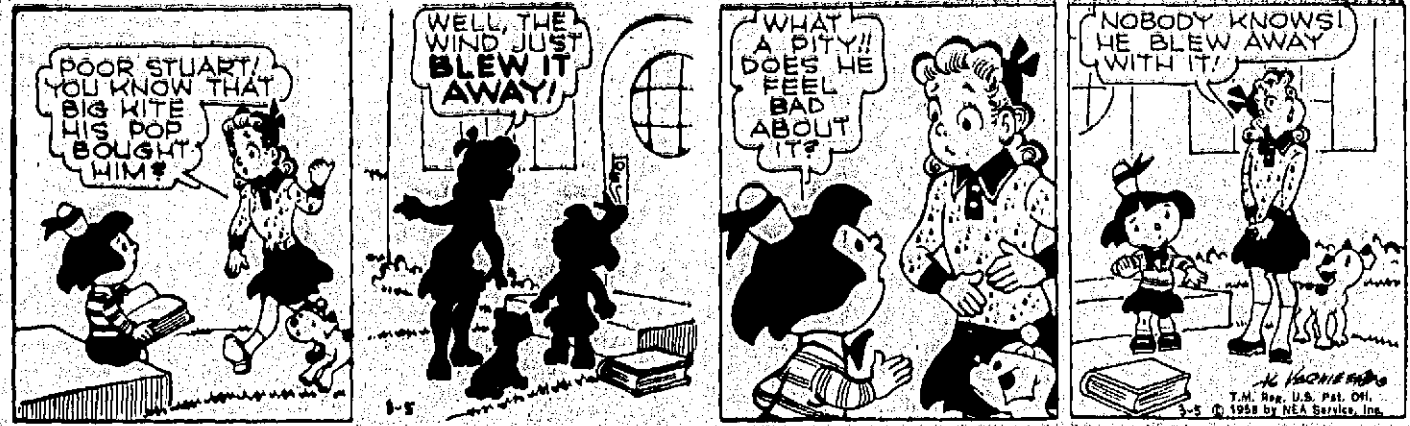

Alan Morrison hit 28 points and Larry Vest 23 for Texarkana. Gary Ward hit 19 for the losers.

CHAPTER XXI

She went to her tiny refrigerator and poured two glasses of juice, squeezed a lime in them. "I don't mind. As a writer I'm curious about such problems. The truth is we all actually enjoy hearing the other person's troubles. That is the root of all gossip. I wish I could give you advice, but I'm hardly the one."

Handling me a glass she sat down again. "I said, 'I didn't mean to talk about it. Slipper out.'"

"I'm not married, never have been, yet I understand what you told me. I suppose I have naive and romantic ideas about marriage, but for me a husband and a wife should be a separate little world of their own. Nothing on the outside should be able to touch that world. Aside from real poverty, I can't picture anything penetrating this inner world of understanding. But to start with it has to be two-sided, a complete sense of give and take."

"I drank most of the juice. It was old and the lime hit me like a shot, woke me up. 'I think I get what you mean. And at times I tell myself I am inconsiderate, but then so is she. All boils down to my job. Maybe she's right about it not being the best job in the world for me, maybe I would be a whiz-bang at something else. But still, it's the only thing I know and I like it. That's what he can't understand: it's more than a job to me, it's something I like. Would you care if your husband was a cop?'"

She shook her head and leaned against the wall. "I wouldn't like him to." "Why?" "She was looking at me through half-shut eyes as she said, 'Let's not go into my reasons now. This private world of understanding I think of, it would have to be a world of small compromises too. In short, he has to be the only man I want and I must be the only woman he wants. For such prizes one must make concessions. No, I wouldn't want my husband to be a hunter of men, a walking club, but if that is what he honestly wants and feels, well there's that wonderful saying about we all can't be in step and each of us must march to the music he hears.'"

"What makes you think cops are walking clubs?" I asked, finishing the juice and getting up. "Let's not talk about that, we'll just get into an argument. I didn't mean it as anything personal — and I hate that stupid phrase: But to a colonial the police usually are." She stood up and gave me the smile. "I don't want to argue with you. It would be rude; you've been so very nice to me."

We shook hands at the door. Downstairs I started walking toward the present house. I wanted to get the latest copy on Wales, tell Red the stuff I'd dug up in Brooklyn. "Hey, Junior!"

I turned to see a squad car in the curb. Landon and Wilson spinning at me. I didn't realize it was after four already. Walking over I asked, "What's the action?" "Nothing too much. Crazy storekeeper phoned in he'd been stuck with a couple of queer ones. Stupid jerk never saw one of the old-fashioned large-size dollar bills before. Somebody must have found an old sock treasure. What happened to your face?"

"Nicked myself while shaving. Anything on Wales now?" Landon shook his head. "What you shave with, a broken bottle?" "You mean there's another way to shave?" Wilson said, "The Brooklyn cops don't think you're old enough to shave. Reed has been calling your home."

"I wasn't going to face any more ribbing on my own time. 'I'll phone him, if he's still there.' 'He's there,' Landon said, giving Wilson the nod to drive on and the big jerk had to call out a parting shot. 'Next time you want to go to Brooklyn, let me know and I'll go along to watch for your age.'"

I phoned Reed from a drugstore, told him, "Wilson says you've been calling my house. Sorry I wasn't there. I've been out." "What's to be sorry about? You're off duty, you can be any place you want. Mrs. Owens called, said she wants you to call her."

"Me?" "That's what she said. Must be something personal. Dave, if you speak to her, don't say anything about Wales' gun having killed her husband. Criminal Office Bureau hasn't let that out yet. Landon said he told you."

Ted Woods New Park Publicity Man

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Robert W. (Ted) Woods, manager of radio station KHHM of Monticello was named as executive director of the Arkansas Publicity and Parks Commission Monday.

Woods, a member of the Commission since its creation in July of 1935 will succeed Sam B. Kirby who died following a heart attack in Chicago last Friday.

Gov. Faubus approved the appointment of Woods, a veteran newspaper and radio station manager, after the seven-member commission had selected him.

Woods resigned from the commission in order to accept the post, which pays $7,500 a year. Woods said he planned to resign as manager of the Monticello station and move to Little Rock with his wife, Mrs. Betty Woods, who is a travel consultant and writer for the Commission.

His appointment is effective today. Woods, formerly a newspaperman with the Arkansas Gazette and the Helena World, has been affiliated with radio stations at Osceola, Helena, Hot Springs and Monticello.

Court Gives Army Notice

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court has put the Army on notice for the first time today that federal courts have the last word on the kind of discharge a soldier gets.

The high court ruled Monday that discharges given by the armed services are subject to judicial review of their legality. The decision came in an opinion ordering the Army to change to "honorable" the discharges given two New York ex-servicemen.

The case was among actions taken by the court following a four week recess. The justices refused to hear another appeal against school desegregation by Prince Edward County, Virginia, one of the original defendants in the historic segregation case of 1954.

Under a ruling by the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, now final, a definite start toward desegregation of the country schools must be ordered by Federal District Judge Sterling M. Hutcheson in Richmond.

While residents have said they will close the schools before they will allow mixed classes. The Military Case.

The court also ruled against three corporations which sought immunity from Michigan taxes on the basis of their status as defense contractors for the federal government. Many states stand to gain millions of tax dollars as a result of the decision.

In another case the court ruled 6-3 that a state may not regulate transportation rates on commodities owned and shipped by the federal government within the state's borders. A California interstate commerce law was declared unconstitutional.

The decision on military discharges came on appeals by John Henry Harmon III of the Bronx and Howard D. Abramowitz of Brooklyn. They had received less-than-honorable discharges.

Abramowitz on the allegation that he was a former Communist and Harmon because of alleged Communist associations before induction.

The Justice Department had conceded that the Army acted illegally in basing the discharges on pre-induction activities. But it said in any event the court had no power to correct the situation.

Monday's unsigned opinion not only gave this jurisdiction to federal courts but said flatly that "the type of discharge to be issued is to be determined solely by the soldier's military record in the Army."

Justice Tom C. Clark dissented on the ground that the military should not be barred from conducting a security program "commonly accepted by civilian government agencies."

BACK TO BACK—Striking a pose that looks like a double exposure is sultry Swedish actress Anila Ekberg. The photographer caught her in front of a mirror in the lobby of a Stockholm movie theater where the star was on hand for a first night showing of "War and Peace," in which she appears.

HEADPIECE—Johnny Michelson, University of Pittsburgh coach, models a new type of clear plastic helmet.

Funeral Directors Are Accused

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The United States Internal Revenue Service filed a complaint before U. S. Commissioner Lee Miles Monday, accusing two Little Rock funeral home directors with not reporting their full 1931 incomes.

Paul Y. Griffin and James H. Leggett, officials of the Griffin-Leggett funeral home, were released on $1,000 bond each. Afterward, Griffin said that accounting procedures are involved, and he believes the procedures followed by his staff are correct. He said neither he, Leggett or James A. Pence attempted to file inaccurate returns for 1931 or any other year.

Pence, an assistant manager of the funeral home, was named in a complaint last week, accused of helping prepare the 1931 report which allegedly did not report the full income for the funeral home.

In another case, the Internal Revenue Service filed a complaint against John E. Bell, of Hickory Plains, accusing him of failing to report all of his 1931 income. Bell was also released on $1,000 bond after appearing before the commissioner.

The complaint alleges that Bell, a merchant, farmer, and lumberman paid $258 but should have paid $13,040 in taxes.

NAACP Appeals to High Court

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Monday appealed a Pulaski chancery court order to open its books to the attorney general's office.

The NAACP told the state Supreme Court it is a non-profit organization exempt from payment of franchise taxes.

The lower court issued a judgment in favor of Attorney General Bruce Bennett, ordering the NAACP to produce its records.

George Howard Negro attorney of Pine Bluff, filed the Supreme Court appeal.

He told Pulaski Circuit Judge Guy Ansler in another case that the Arkansas Bar Rules committee, not Bennett, is the one who should investigate a complaint the NAACP legal defense and education fund is improperly practicing law in the state. Howard argued that Bennett did not have authority to file a suit to stop the fund from operating in Arkansas.

Farm Income Rose But Less to Spend

WASHINGTON (UP)—The average farmer's total net income last year rose by 6.8 per cent, but he had about 2.4 per cent less money to spend.

The Agriculture Department reported this seeming contradiction Tuesday in its publication, "The Farm Price Situation."

The department differentiates between farmers' net income and their net realized income. The former rose from $2,537 in 1936 to $2,496 last year. The latter declined to $2,347 from the $2,432 figure for 1936.

Net income includes the value of crops still unsold on farms at the end of the year. Net realized income is the actual cash a farmer has left after all production costs are paid and does not include the value of unsold crops or livestock.

The department said net income rose because there were 2 per cent fewer farms in 1937 than in 1936.

There were also two million fewer persons on farms during the year. This meant that average farm income per capita rose to a record $993, compared with $902 in 1936.

Four Persons Die, Three in Family

CARLYLE, Ill. (UP)—Four persons, three members of one family, were killed today when a west-bound Baltimore and Ohio freight train struck a car driven by Lester Berry, 18, at an intersection here.

Phyllis, 13, Irene, 14, and Flora Kay, 6, the sisters of Lester Berry, were killed instantly, and Eugene Higgins, 33, died at St. Joseph's Hospital at Breese about an hour after the accident, which occurred at 8:10 a.m.

Sheriff's deputies said another child, 6-year-old Allen Berry, suffered a broken arm. He and Lester, whose injuries have not yet been determined, were also taken to St. Joseph's.
